Student Accessibility Services Alternate Text Agreement

Before submitting your Alternate Text Request form, you may wish to consider one of the options listed below.

1. Many publishers are now offering e-books. Be sure to do research on each e-book before purchasing to ensure that it is compatible with your assistive technology. If it is an option that will work with your text-to-speech/screen reader program, you may wish to think about purchasing.
2. You can also purchase audiobooks from places such as Audible.com (www.audible.com) or Librovox (<https://librivox.org/>) or investigate audiobook apps for your mobile phone. If your book is available, and you feel this will be work for you, you may wish to get your text in audio format.
3. Bookshare offers free alternate text if you have a print disability. You will need specialized software to read their books, but there are free options for apps and software. Their website is www.bookshare.com.
4. Some books are available for free from Project Gutenberg at <https://www.gutenberg.org/>.

If none of the above options work, submit the Alternate Text Request Form.
